RESERVOIR CONSTRUCTION ON TRUCKEE RIVER ASSURED

Work Expected to Start Next Fall or Winter. $1,000,000 Has Been Re-allotted and Will Be Available When Needed.

Formal approval which has been given by Secretary Ickes of the interior department, of the contract drawn by the interests on the Truckee River providing for up stream storage, paves the way for construction of a dam on the Little Truckee river as soon as the Washoe County Conservation District and the Truckee-Carson Irrigation District, by elections, give their approval to the agreement according to Thomas R. King, engineer for the irrigation district who has just returned from Washington. According to King, the agreement has already been approved by the Sierra Pacific Power Co. and contracts for construction of the dam will be let after the two districts act favorably. The sum of $1,000,000 for the project has been re-allotted by special presidential order, King said, and will be available when needed.

Approval of the agreement by the officials of the Indian department, the reclamation service and finally by Secretary Ickes was given following a series of protracted conferences held in Washington that were participated in by representatives of the interests on the river and the interior department officials, during which Senator Pittman appeared as the representative of the Nevada interest. As a consequence of these conferences the Indian department importantly modified its demand for water for the Pyramid Lake Indian reservation which threatened at times to make agreement impossible. As now drawn articles eleven, dealing with Indian water rights provides that they shall receive a supply of 3120 acres of bottom lands and 2745 acres of bench lands, the water to be diverted when actually needed for the lands mentioned, and with the further provision that such lands and water shall not be conveyed to white purchasers.

The completed contract, at the conclusion of the conferences, was officially approved by the interior department in the following letter, a copy of which was delivered to the Nevada interests.

June 12, 1935.

The Honorable,
The Secretary of the Interior,
My Dear Mr. Secretary:

On February 14, 1935, the acting secretary of the interior approved as to form a draft of agreement proposed to be entered into with the Truckee-Carson Irrigation District, Washoe County Water Conservation District, Sierra Pacific Power Company, the United States of America and other users of water of the Truckee River, providing for the settlement of the pending adjudication suit on the Newlands project, for the regulation of water releases from Lake Tahoe, and from the proposed reservoir to be constructed on the Little Truckee river.

Subsequent to the approval of contract questions concerning Article XI thereof which attempted to define the rights of the United States for the benefit of the Indians on the Pyramid Lake Indian Reservation. This article has been rewritten and is now understood to be satisfactory to the interested parties. The contract (copy attached) has been rewritten to include the amended Article XI. I recommend the approval of the form of agreement and request authority to transmit it to the parties for execution.

Very truly yours,
ELWOOD MEAD,
Commissioner.

I Concur
Wm. ZIMMERMAN, JR.,
Commissioner of Indian Affairs.

Approved
HAROLD L. ICKES,
Secretary of the Interior.

According to Engineer King, before construction of the dam can be undertaken the contract must be approved at elections held by the water users of the district and those on the Newlands project and also by the Sierra Pacific Power Company. The latter has already announced that the contract meets with its approval. Before the elections are held in the district the exact acreage to be assessed must be determined and the regular steps for the election, required by the laws of Nevada, must be complied with. By moving with dispatch, he says, it should be possible for the contract for the dam to be let sometime next fall or winter. The president's order, he says, requiring that one person shall be employed for each $1100 and $1200 expended will not apply to the Truckee river allotment.

The completion of the Boca Dam will assure the farmers and the people of western Nevada an ample supply of water for irrigation and domestic use and will relieve the drain upon the waters of our beautiful Donner Lake, which has been greatly disfigured and presents a most unattractive appearance after the water is drained out each year which is sold to Nevada for irrigation purposes.

Laura Duncan and Pete Passinetti Married in Reno

The young couple will make their home in Truckee where Mr. Passinetti is employed by the highway department and is part owner of the Bungalow Sandwich shop.

Sportsmen's Association Meeting Monday Night

A meeting of the Truckee River Sportsmen's Assn. will be held in the Sierra Sun office on Monday night and all members are urged to attend as there is important business to be transacted.

A drive will be made next week for contributions for the association to maintain the rearing ponds of the San Francisco Fly Casting Club this season. Within a few weeks the 200,000 rainbow trout will be turned over to the association by the Fish and Game Commission to be raised in the rearing ponds.

Many favorable comments have been made by fishermen as to the improved condition of the Truckee River this season and the whole hearted co-operation of the business houses in town will assure still better fishing conditions next season.

The San Francisco Fly Casting Club have given the Association the free use of the rearing ponds again this year and have recently made extensive improvements and repairs to the rearing ponds, and the only expense of the association will be for providing a man to take charge and for feeding the fish until they are released in the fall.

BUILDING STARTS ON ICE PALACE

Excavation and Grading Completed, Foundation Is Now Well Underway.

This week marked the beginning of the actual building of the Truckee Ice Palace according to C. Edmunds, manager of the Truckee Winter Sports.

The past few months have been devoted to clearing the site for the ice palace and grading and excavating. The ice palace will be constructed in a series of circles, the large circle to contain the ice rink 150 feet in diameter, a smaller circle in the rear for a huge fire place and warming room and the two circles in the front of the building for a public room and club room. The walls of the building will be 25 feet high and will be built of native stone.

On Tuesday the pouring of the cement for the foundation wall was begun by the SERRA workers. This wall to be built of native stones gathered on the grounds is approximately six feet in width and two feet high. Upon this foundation wall will be built the rock walls of the ice palace which will be four feet thick at the bottom and graduated to two and one-half feet at the top. Native stone and cement will be used also for these walls.

During the past week an office building and tool house has been built and water has been piped to the grounds for use in the construction work.

FEDERAL AGENTS MAKE SPEEDY ARRESTS

Speed displayed by federal agents in tracking down the Weyerhaeuser kidnapers is worthy of the highest commendation, according to California editors.

Promptness with which arrests were made, it was agreed, clearly demonstrated to the criminal element that kidnaping, as a means of making quick, easy money, is a losing business.

"Kidnapers," said the Hanford Daily Sentinel, "are gradually learning by grim experience that arrest with conviction and punishment is inescapable. The latest example is seen in the Weyerhaeuser case, where the abductors are being rounded up by government agents and made ready for trial with a probable death penalty. Exactly one week after 9-year-old George Weyerhaeuser was released after his kidnapers collected $200,000 ransom, Harmon Waley and his wife, Margaret, were arrested in Salt Lake City and had confessed.

The arrests, notes the Marysville Appeal-Democrat, "will serve to sustain confidence that the 'snatch racket' is not to become one of our major crime problems. With the department of justice agents turning up the perpetrators as fast as abductions are committed, the temptation of ransom money will not appeal to gangsters who are cowardly at heart and prefer to operate in fields where they can buy protection. There is no such thing as the purchase of immunity for kidnaping, and there is a high degree of certainty that guilty will lead to life imprisonment or to the gallows."

Capture of the kidnapers, remarks the Los Angeles Daily News, "is one more conclusive argument for widening federal authority in the campaign against crime. The federal officers with their nationwide lines of communication, their independence of baneful political influence and their years of continuous training and experience in the pursuit of criminals have proved in less than two years that if the fear of the law can abate crime, the tide has already turned. An odd phase of kidnaping is that despite the advantages the kidnaper has by compelling his victim to become an accessory after the fact, the percentage of male-factors who get away with it is small."

According to the Berkeley Gazette, "it is the cocksureness, born of experience with the law in combination with the particular brand of stupidity found in most criminals, that eventually leads to their undoing. Encouraged by repeated evasions of severe punishment for ordinary crimes and encouraged by the belief that it is superior intelligence rather than legal laxities that have kept him out of prison and allowed him to evade full punishment, the criminal eventually undertakes the 'perfect' crime, only to discover that he is not the 'perfect' criminal."

In this connection, the Long Beach Sun believes "it surely must be obvious to every intelligent person that the work of law enforcement officers, prosecutors and courts goes for naught when the prison doors are opened so easily and frequently for men such as these two implicated in the Weyerhaeuser kidnaping case. The one bright ray of hope in this instance is that the suspects now are under federal jurisdiction and it is not the habit of the federal government to readily open the doors of its penitentiaries for criminals."

"Money represents power," concludes the Stockton Record, "but not abduction ransom money. All paper currency is marked by its numbers and cannot be tendered without leading to the consequences that the Waleys have experienced. And so another 'perfect crime' has become a perfect botch, like all the other kidnaping cases from the Lindbergh 'snatch' down to the present. The speedy unraveling of the Weyerhaeuser mystery serves as a perfect object lesson to other defectives who think they might get away with a crime like it."

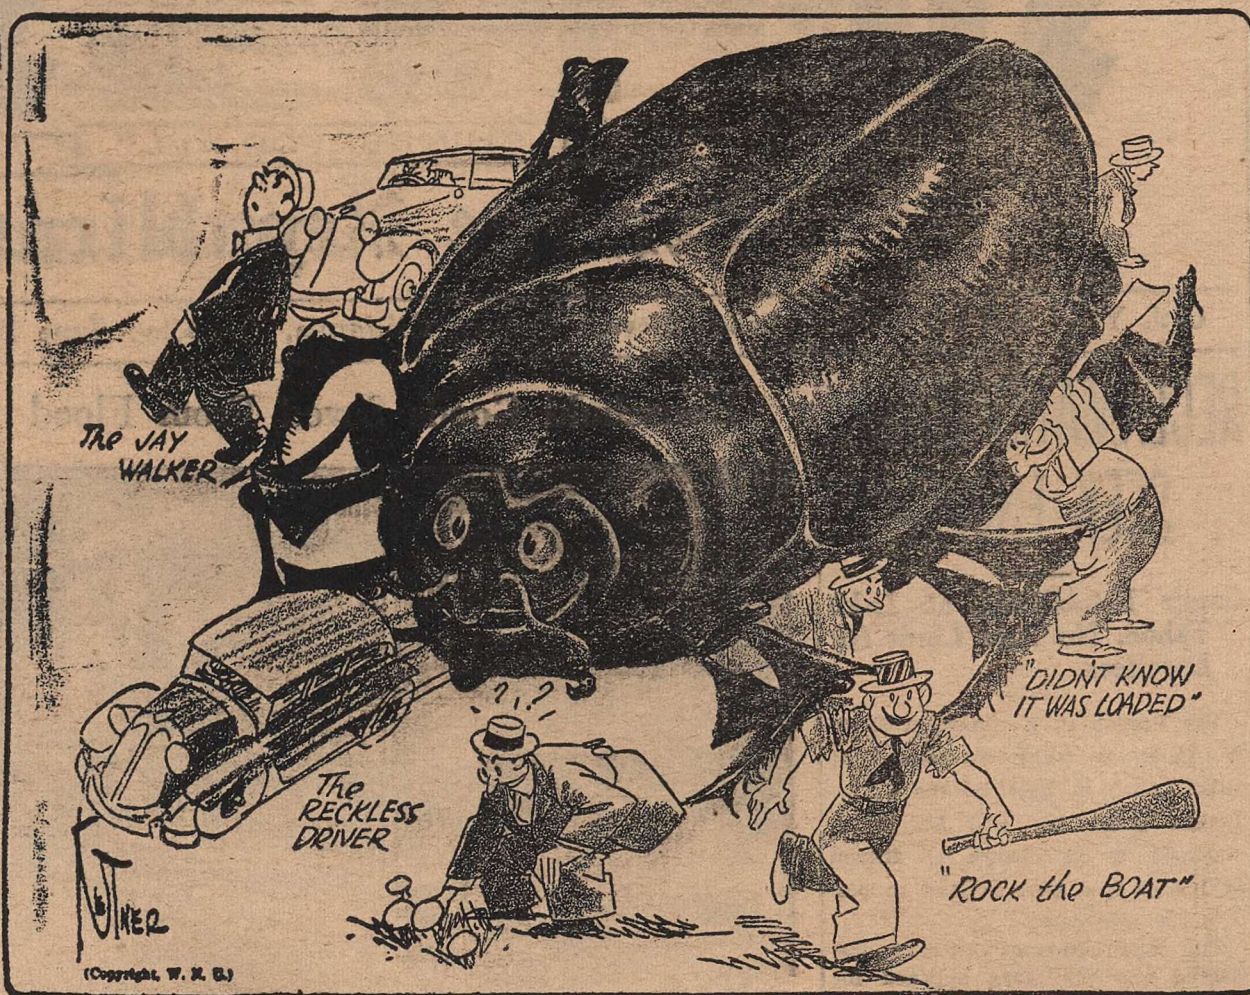

SCHOOL IS OUT

For thousands of young men and women in California, school is out, now, forever.

Graduation exercises throughout the state during the past fortnight have sent throngs of them into the battle of life on their own. The sequestered peace, the carefree joyousness is gone, and they are left to face the discordant music of a maladjusted world.

Bleak as the prospect is, however, it is not without heartening aspects. These youths have only to look back on the plight of those who were graduated in 1932 and 1933 to know that it could be much worse.

June Bugs

Industry may not yet be ready to absorb them, but it has speeded up considerably since the dark days of mid-depression; unemployment is on the wane in California, and more than one economist is predicting the greatest American "boom" man has ever known. Unquestionably, better times are on the way.

It will remain for these youths to shape the future of California and the nation. Among the ever-shifting confusion of social theories and governmental hypotheses, will they choose to remain individuals in a democracy, or to become colorless mass, watched over and cared for by a paternal government?

The former course will be open, in spite of the extremes in social security legislation (which in a limited degree may be beneficial), that some people are demanding.

Instead of a guarantee of a bare living, by decree, these young people may rely on their own energy and ingenuity for an abundant living. Instead of relying entirely on certain grants to sustain them in declining years, they may call upon what they have themselves stored away in life insurance, perhaps, or in annuities specifically fashioned to yield sustenance when one can no longer work.

These youths just beginning to come to grips with life's realities will probably choose democracy and individualism. After all, the heritage that the pioneers left to California cannot have faded so soon.

Politically Speaking

By GEORGE E. HELMER
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

SACRAMENTO, June 20.—(UP)—Administration pressure in all its power was turned on the legislature to jam the controversial state automobile tax plan through both houses during an eleventh hour drive to complete the 1935-37 budget program.

Early legislative predictions that Gov. Frank F. Merriam would be unable to control the unruly body of lawmakers fell somewhat short of facts when the administration "turned on the heat" to force a two-thirds vote in both houses and assure acceptance of the major points in the governor's program.

Pressure first was needed in the senate, despite the fact the upper house was supposed to be friendly to the executive and determined to go down the line on his plans.

The governor, although keeping out of sight in President Pro-tem W. P. Rich's office, had an active part in the senate battle. His lieutenants scurried about, seeking opponents who were undecided or who had something to trade. Some of these senators were reported to have been shunted into Rich's office.

The roll call on reconsideration, after original defeat of the bill, showed 24 favorable votes. Twenty-seven were needed. After a long period of maneuvering during a call of the senate, six senators changed their vote from "no" to "aye" and an absentee joined the majority, to give the bill a vote of 30 to 9.

The assembly fight was much more difficult and prolonged. Members of the lower house defeated the bill on first consideration, 41 to 37. Fifty-four votes were needed. Notice of reconsideration was given, and a goodly portion of the next 24 hours was spent preparing for the final showdown fight. The administration needed to pick up 13 votes—a major undertaking in that stubborn assembly.

Merriam's most efficient lieutenants, department heads, secretaries, floor leaders and friends—swung into the fray. When reconsideration was granted and the vote taken, there were 51 "ayes," 27 "noes" and 2 absentees. It was necessary for the administration to change one of the "noes" and win support of both absentees.

Then it was that the pressure was concentrated. Assembly doors were locked under a call of the house. Merriam's representatives sought out members whom they thought might be persuaded to change. Little groups gathered in the lobby, out on the balcony, in the cloak room. Four hours elapsed, then the call was lifted.

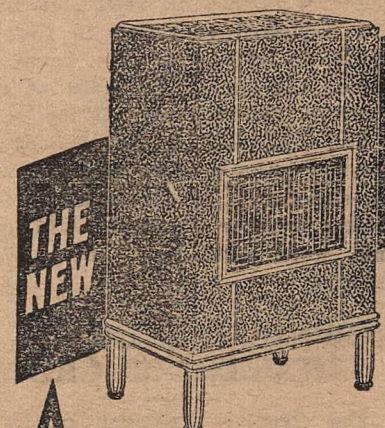

The two absentees, Herbert J. Evans and Sam L. Helsing, voted "yes." Earl D. Desmond, Sacramento changed his vote from "no to aye." The bill barely carried, 54 to 26, thus ending the major tax deadlocks and clearing the way for speedier conclusion of the longest legislative session in California's history.

The President might have known that this would happen. Just as soon as the country begins to look a little better the Republicans want it back.

TAHOE REGION NEWS

By Swanee

A wedding of interest at Tahoe took place on Wednesday at Reno, when Miss Opal Summers of Madera attractive local telephone operator wed Lowell R. Van Luyen of Truckee, employee of the Truckee-Tahoe Lumber Co. The marriage of the popular young couple culminates a courtship which had its inception at Tahoe. Jean Williams and Tony Pace of Truckee accompanied them to Reno and acted as witnesses. Following a short honeymoon to Sacramento in their new car they will return to the Tahoe region where the bride will complete her season's contract with the telephone company. Their many friends here, who are planning social events in their honor, offer heartiest congratulations.

Cal-Neva opened on Saturday night with a reservation list of 230 every inch of available floor space crowded to capacity. A marvelous season is predicted for Tahoe, reports this summer, which it is anticipated, will be short but snappy. Mrs. Leon Roos, wife of the well known San Francisco clothier, in company with two ladies, suffered a mishap on the Truckee-Tahoe highway on Monday about 3:30 p. m. when her large coupe apparently skidded when turning out to pass another machine and the brakes locked, turning the car over and hurling it down a 40-foot embankment. Mrs. Roos and Miss Knapp received a broken wrist each, which was attended by Dr. C. B. Pedersen of Tahoe Tavern, and the other lady whose name was not learned suffered severe cuts on the face. The car was towed to Henry Garage in Tahoe City for repairs.

The Truckee-Tahoe Lumber Co. were hosts to 12 of their employees on Saturday night at Cal-Neva. Others visiting this popular resort on opening night were Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Henry, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Arguello Celeste Plannett and Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Hull.

Mrs. Katherine Lannan and daughter Martha of Hollywood were guests during the week at Connelly's resort.

Q. C. Keating of Sacramento is the successful bidder on the new school at Tahoe, erection of which will be started at once. His bid was $14,305.00. Mr. Keating will move his family to Tahoe for the summer, arriving on Saturday. He was urged to use all the local help and contractors possible by request of the local school board. The latter urged time and a half for overtime and Sundays, but the district attorney over ruled this by declaring that the men could only work 6 hours a day and 30 hours a week. A number of changes in the original plans were made, as not enough money was voted to properly build and equip a school of the size desired. Instead of painting the entire building as called for in the specifications only the doors and windows will be painted; where the original plans called for maple floors throughout, now only the assembly will be maple floored. The building will be of rustic finish with lockers and a kitchen. With good weather Mr. Keating plans to have it ready for occupancy by Oct. 1st.

Aid To Home Owners Expires June 27

Little more than a week remains in which the Home Owners' Loan Corporation can accept applications from distressed home owners for refinancing loans by which they hope to avoid financial trouble possibly involving the loss of their homes.

Statewide attention is called to this fact by W. O. Miles, State Manager of the corporation, who explains that the legislation signed by President Roosevelt on May 28 specifically limits new applications to thirty days from the signing of the measure. This brings the end of the period to midnight, June 27, and there is little likelihood of any extension of time.

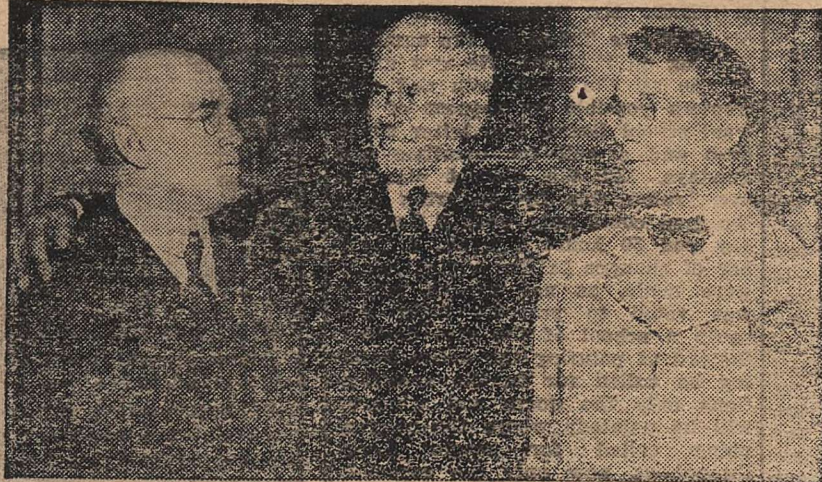

Every effort has been made by the corporation to provide facilities for new applicants in California. In addition to the district offices in six large cities, other branches have been opened in smaller municipalities so there would be a minimum of time lost by would-be borrowers. Full information and guidance has been supplied at these branches as well as at the large offices, and where eligible the application has been promptly accepted.

Despite the many seekers after information and loans, it is believed many persons have delayed applying, and it is to reach these that this notice of the approaching end of the period is issued.

As expected, the number of applicants is much smaller than when the corporation began operations two years ago. Not only have the most urgent cases been provided for, by the Corporation's refinancing, but large lending institutions have been enabled, by the release of funds, to care for more of their clients. Since the Corporation began operations in California in August, 1933, more than 44,000 loans for a total of $117,000,000 have been made in the State, and peace of mind brought thousands of families.

There is still time remaining, in which to apply for aid, but not much time, and none should be lost. Therefore those desirous of refinancing their indebtedness should apply at once to the nearest office of the Corporation.

S. P. Refunds $850,000 In Pension Pay

Distribution of approximately $850,000, impounded under provisions of the Railway Pension Act, among Southern Pacific employees in six western states was being completed today, following the recent decision of the Supreme Court declaring the pension act unconstitutional.

Partial return of the pension funds accompanied the company's pay checks of June 5, it was announced by local representatives of the railroad. The remainder of the special checks, numbering 64,868 in all, are now ready for delivery, they said.

Sharing the refund are 52,500 employees and former employees of Southern Pacific's Lines, extending from San Francisco to Ogden and from Portland to El Paso, and 2,368 employees of the railroad's wholly owned subsidiary companies, according to the announcement.

Under the terms of the Railway Pension Act, two per cent of the railroad employee's pay up to $300 a month was withheld for the purpose of the retirement fund, it was explained. The railroads were directed by the act to add double the amount paid by each employee.

The deductions were made over the nine-month period from August, 1934, to April, 1935, and were halted by the Supreme Court's decision.

TIRES MAY LOOK ALIKE ON THE OUTSIDE ON THE INSIDE THEY ARE DIFFERENT

HEAT on the inside created by friction is the main cause of blowouts. Firestone Tires are different on the inside—they are built with the patented extra process of Gum-Dipping that soaks every cord and insulates every strand with pure liquid rubber, preventing internal friction and heat. No other make of tire is Gum-Dipped.

Firestone performance records again emphasize the undisputed evidence that Firestone Tires are not only blowout-proof, but give greatest protection against skidding. There are three questions and answers that will solve the problem of what tires to buy:

QUESTION 1—"Will the tread give me the greatest traction and protection against skidding?"

ANSWER—Recent tests by a leading University show that Firestone High Speed Non-Skid Tires stop a car 15% quicker than any other of the leading makes. For eight consecutive years Firestone Tires have been on the winning car in the dangerous Pike's Peak Race where a skid means death. This is undisputed evidence that Firestone gives car owners greatest protection against skidding.

QUESTION 2—"Are they blowout-proof?"

ANSWER—Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires have the most amazing records for being blowout-proof of any tires ever built. In the gruelling 500-Mile Race at Indianapolis, May 30th, every one of the 33 cars was equipped with Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires. Not one of the 33 drivers had any tire trouble of any kind.

Ab Jenkins drove his 5,000 pound car on Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires over the hot salt beds of Utah, 3,000 miles at 127.2 miles per hour, with temperatures as high as 120°, without tire trouble of any kind. These are most amazing proofs of blowout protection ever known.

QUESTION 3—"Without sacrificing these two important safety features will they give me longer mileage, thus making them the most economical tires I can buy?"

ANSWER—Firestone High Speed Tires not only give you more than 50% longer wear, but also lowest cost per mile due to the tough, wear-resisting tread built with higher shoulders and a wider, flatter contour. This rugged tread is held securely to the Gum-Dipped cord body by Firestone's patented construction of two extra layers of cords under the tread, a special construction feature not used in any other tire. Unequalled mileage records by thousands of car owners add undisputed evidence of longer wear and greater economy of Firestone High Speed Tires.

MOTOR SERVICE

G. PACE, Prop.
Bridge St. Truckee, Calif.

He gets out of bed quietly, goes to his knapsack—takes out an iron bar, feels it, menacingly. The door to the bishop's room is ajar. It makes him hesitate. It is too easy. He enters, regards the sleeping man with haggard astonishment, not unmixed with fear, then moves to the cupboard to pry it open.

There is no need to use force—the key is already there. Again it seems too easy, and he glances suspiciously in the bishop's direction, then begins to pull out the silver, which is piled together in a basket.

The bishop is busy writing in the dining-room. He looks up as he hears a scream from Magloire and the sound of running feet.

"The silver is gone! I told you—that man! He went off without a word and he's taken the silver! Now we've no silver plates."

The bishop goes back to his notes, unconcerned. "Well, well, what are plates, after all? We can just as well eat off tin."

"How can we? Tin tastes."

"Well, then, iron plates."

"Iron's as bad."

"Well, then wood—"

"Who ever heard of a bishop eating off wooden plates?"

With a twinkle in his eye: "They'd probably be all the better if they did."

There is a heavy knocking at the door. Magloire immediately registers apprehension.

The door is already half-open when the bishop, unperturbed, again calls in his usual easy manner:

"Come in!"

Three gendarmes are there and between them is Jean, utterly dejected.

"This man, Jean Valjean—we saw him running away. We stopped him and found he had this silver with your crest on it."

"Now, what is all this? I'm very glad to see you again, Jean—"

The gendarmes look astonished. Jean glares at the bishop. Is this some new trick?

"Yes, because I gave you the two silver candlesticks, as well, and they're worth perhaps two hundred francs. How did you come to leave them behind?"

Jean is too astonished to reply. The bishop turns to the police:

"Didn't he tell you that the good priest with whom he passed the night gave him this silver?"

"He said so, but naturally we thought—"

"That was very clever of you. You do your work well. But it's quite a mistake," he turns to Jean, "the silver was his."

"Then we can let him go?"

"Why, certainly! And give him his knapsack."

When they are left alone together, Jean is almost overwhelmed. He begins to break down.

"Is it true?" he stammers. "I don't go back to the galleys? You'll let me go free?"

When Is a Man Free?

"When is a man free? I wish someone could tell me. Yes, you can go. And this time, of course, take your candlesticks."

"You give them to me?"

"Long ago, Jean," the bishop says gently. "I learned that life was to give—not take. Let me give. In turn, promise me you, in turn—will give."

Jean is unable to speak. He drops to one knee. The bishop puts his hand on his shoulder.

"My door is never closed. Don't use any other way—furtively, in the night. The door is the right way, and the right way, Jean, is always open to you."

It is this view of the bishop that Jean carries in his mind forever after.

Jean lifts himself to his feet and with his shoulders hunched for his knapsack stumbles to the door, his whole body shaking.

He trudges along the road, shoulders bowed, his eyes vague and bewildered, trying to understand. As he trudges, the bishop's voice comes to him—

"Life is to give, not to take—promise me, when your turn comes you, too—will give."

Slowly it comes to him that there is still someone with faith and trust in the world. He feels the world can still hold something for him—one man, at least, has trusted him.

The trudge-rhythm changes, his head and shoulders become erect and he looks into the future with hope and determination in his eyes.

Thus ended the first phase of the life of Jean Valjean.

CHAPTER 3

The Road Back

With courage of the bishop's words, Jean's progress in the next five years bordered on the miraculous. Under a new name, he has established himself in a town in Alsace, and step by step has worked his way up in the respect and esteem of the small community.

As M. Madeleine, he has changed completely. There is a streak of grey in his hair, but otherwise he is clean-shaven and is smiling, cheerful, good-humored. He has been eminently successful in turning an absolutely bankrupt manufacturing firm into a thriving business organization. We find him in the best of spirits as he bids good-night to a group of prominent townsfolk who have come to inform him of his appointment as mayor and magistrate.

Left alone with the aftermath of a successful and happy day, Jean turns to the fireplace. On the mantelpiece are the bishop's candlesticks. He smiles at the thought of all these symbols have done for him. "We've come a long way together, haven't we?"

There is a knock at the door, and the housekeeper shows in a man in a police uniform. As the man comes forward, Jean's hands, still holding the candlesticks, drop slightly. It is Javert, warden of the prison-ship. The two men come face to face, but Javert is precise and also deferential, showing no sign of recognizing Jean.

"My name is Javert. I am the new inspector of police assigned to this district, reporting for duty to the new mayor and to pay my respects."

Jean remains thoughtful for a moment after Javert's departure. He looks up at the candlesticks and then at the door. The sudden appearance of Javert has troubled and disturbed him.

It is shortly after that Jean actually buys Little Cosette, daughter of Fantine Lesrolles employed in his factory, from the proprietor of the Sergeant of Waterloo Inn and his grasping wife to look after until her mother is well and able to take care of her herself.

Jean and Cosette are playing checkers on the floor. Cosette suddenly dives her hand on the board and makes an obvious move. Jean laughs:

"You win!"

The two are the picture of contentment.

Javert Again

Toussaint, the old housekeeper, comes into the scene.

"M. Javert is here."

"Javert?"

"He wants to speak to you privately. I asked him if I could take a message, but he said it concerned you only. He spoke in such a peculiar way—"

Javert is not the calm, stoical, austere person one would expect. He is apparently under stress of emotion. He wipes the sweat from his forehead; his hand is trembling. He hears the noise of the latch and the two men come face to face.

Javert speaks in a husky undertone:

"I am sorry to disturb you at this hour, but I have a duty—an urgent duty to perform."

"Go on."

"As soon as I was sure—I had to act at once."

"Yes?"

"M. Madeleine, a criminal act has been committed."

Jean nods to him to go on.

"An agent of the government has committed a crime—a crime against a magistrate."

Jean is surprised and puzzled.

"Agent? Who is this agent?"

"It is I."

"And who is the magistrate?"

"You."

To Jean's surprise, Javert takes out his official police passport and puts it on the table, continuing:

"You must prefer charges against me. You have a right."

As Jean protests, Javert continues his words tumbling over one another, broken breathlessly.

"Yes, yes, yes, I tell you, you must prefer charges. I, who demand justice of others, must demand it for myself. You see, I denounced you to the prefect of police."

"As what?"

"A former convict."

"Well?"

"After that incident with the woman, Fantine, when you so oddly distinguished between the law and justice and refused to prosecute, I began to ferret out your past. I resented your interference with my carrying out my duty. I questioned your authority, so I went to work. Secretly I traced you. By studying the records of escaped criminals and those who had failed to report for parole and by an exhaustive process of elimination, I finally became convinced that you were a convict named Jean Valjean."

"What was that name?"

"Jean Valjean."

"As an ex-convict he was ordered to report to the police at Pontarlier. He has never reported. He has been missing five years. I traced him to the Bishop Bienvenu. He stole silver, but the bishop would not charge. The trail ended there, and although I had no positive proof, I was so sure—I denounced you."

"Real Valjean Found"

"And what, what answer did you get?"

"That I was mad. I must have been mad to make such a mistake—worse, I was a fool, for the real Valjean has been found."

Jean looks at Javert in amazement.

"Yes, they arrested him last week at Arras. He goes by another name, Champmathieu, but he was caught for theft. The dates of his disappearances are identical with Valjean's record—witnesses will swear to him—a fellow criminal recognized him. Undoubtedly they have the man, Valjean."

"Well?"

"I made the mistake. I allowed a personal grievance to interfere with my duty. I must be dismissed."

Jean now takes a different tone and says:

"You did your duty—it is your place to suspect."

Now for the first time we learn something of Javert's creed. His confession is in a husky whisper, a man deeply and sincerely ashamed and broken by his failure.

"No. There is more to it than that. I, too, have my creed. M. Madeleine. They call me hard and brutal, but I am not—I am just. But I've always said to myself, 'Yes, you're hard, you're ruthless when you are in the right, but look out—one day you, yourself, will trip. Then will you be just?' I swore I would. That time has arrived. M. Madeleine. I have caught myself. I have committed a crime. I have been unjust from anger, resentment, jealousy—what you will. I stand for justice—I have failed."

Seeing Jean is about to protest, Javert goes on:

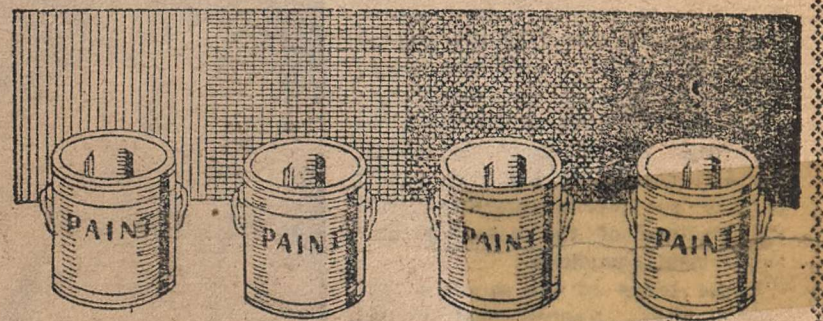

"What I have always demanded for others—the law, good or bad, but the law to the letter—I now demand for myself."

Jean looks closely at Javert, and now it is Javert who is tormented and Jean who is almost consoling him.

"I make no charge against you."

"You must. If you don't then I must."

New Silvertowns Proved 3 Times Safer from High Speed Blow-Outs

• Here—in his own words—Bert Lytell tells how he found out how dangerous blow-outs can be. "I was driving to Minneapolis, doing about 60 miles an hour on a dirt road when that tire blew out. My car 'waltzed' around—swerved and finally came to rest on the brink of a ditch. If it had gone over, I'd still be in there... they could have covered me up... But no more of these close shaves for me! From now on I'm riding on Goodrich Safety Silvertowns."

Let us put a set of Goodrich Safety Silvertowns on your car. They are the only tires in the world with the Life-Saver Golden Ply—the amazing Goodrich invention that makes Silvertowns three times safer from high speed blow-outs. Remember, Silvertowns cost no more than other standard tires. And they give you months more mileage at no extra cost.

Unemployment Problem Studied By Legislature

SACRAMENTO, June 20.—(UP)—Designed to prevent a repetition of California's current unemployment problem, a bill to set up an unemployment reserve fund to be administered by a special state commission has been passed by the assembly and now is before the upper house.

The measure, one of the outstanding social service proposals before the 51st session, is based on a report of an interim committee and the findings of the assembly unemployment committee.

Under terms of the measure the unemployment reserve fund would be built up from contributions made by employers at the rate of 3 per cent of their payrolls, and payments by employees equal to 1 percent of their wages in 1936 and 1½ per cent in 1937.

The insurance would apply only to firms employing four workers or more. It would not apply to agricultural workers, domestic servants or persons receiving more than $2,500 a year.

Benefits would range from $7 to $15 a week on the basis of one week's payments for every four in which the worker participated in the insurance fund.

"The bill further provides that a worker cannot draw benefits when or if he is on strike, or if he fails to apply or refuses to accept work. A worker cannot receive benefits if he has not been a resident of the state for one year prior to seeking benefits."

During 1936 the "waiting period" would be four weeks and afterward, three weeks. The waiting period must prevail before unemployment benefits may be paid.

Should a worker lose employment for misconduct or voluntary quitting, the waiting period is extended to eight weeks.

"We do not believe this is a cure-all," said Assemblyman C. C. Cottrell, San Jose, one of the authors, "but it is a step in the right direction."

Prizes For Women's Work Increased For California State Fair

Who is the best home candy maker in California? This question will be answered for the first time at the 1935 California State Fair with the establishment of a new class of candy making including fudge, creams taffy and brittle.

Increased awards and many new classes will also call forth entries in other domestic arts and sciences.

Glazed pottery, hand wrought ornaments, terra cotta and metal work are among the new classes which will give every woman and many men, too, who do this work, an opportunity to display their talent in arts and crafts.

Home canned fruits and vegetables, homemade preserves, jams and jellies, candied fruits, pickles and catsup will also bring many entries to this year's fair.

The class for bread, cakes and pies has been enlarged to include fancy muffins, baking power biscuits, assorted cookies, afternoon cakes, tea cakes and layer cakes.

Entrants will again have an opportunity to display specimen embroidery, lace and drawn work, living room fancy work and wearing apparel. These include the prized designs of all nations as well as the newest in handiwork.

Entry blanks may be obtained by writing to the California State Fair, Sacramento.

Indians Expected to Approve Reorganization

SACRAMENTO, June 20.—(UP)—California Indians apparently will approve by a large majority the Indian reorganization act passed by congress, first returns from balloting on 56 reservations in the Sacramento district indicate.

Under terms of the act, the various tribes will be reorganized into self-governing communities. Funds are provided for the purchase of farms, and other sums allotted for Indian education.

Field agents, all members of the Indian race, will be assigned from Washington to assist in carrying out provisions of the act. O. H. Lipps, superintendent of the Indian agency here, said.

C. Triboli of Sacramento crashed into a parked car on the Tahoe Highway about eight o'clock Tuesday night and damaged his large sedan.

The car was towed to the Truckee Garage for repairs.

Senators Will Study Power Question

SACRAMENTO, June 20.—(UP)—The legislature was determined to have facts and not theories on which to base prospective legislation for centralization of public ownership of utilities.

A resolution recently passed by the senate seeks appointment of a joint committee of six to study feasibility and practicability of such a program. An appropriation of $20,000 was sought to underwrite the expense.

"Recent developments indicate that centralization of public ownership and control of power and water utilities in California would be for the best interest of the people in securing most economical development and direct revenue to meet increasing cost of government" the resolution read.

The successful development of such projects as the Niagara power project by the Canadian government and the trend toward public ownership as evidenced in the Tennessee Valley authority and Central Valley project proposals were cited.

In advocating his resolution, Senator Jerrold Seawell, Roseville, expressed the hope that those appointed to study the question would be favorable toward public ownership of utilities.

"Otherwise," he explained, "the purpose of this program would be defeated."

The resolution was opposed by Senators Williams, Gordon, Hayes, Keough, Knowland, Sharkey, Snyder and Wagay.

Heat Makes Soda Pop, Pop

WILLOWS, Cal. June 20.—(UP)—When the soda pop began to pop, Mrs. Walter Dunham of Stonyford needed no thermometer to determine it was a hot day.

Returning from an outing club, Mrs. Dunham was unpacking supplies, including a half dozen bottles of soda water. The intense heat caused the charged water to expand and the bottles exploded, showering splintered glass about the room.

Mrs. Dunham was treated for minor cuts inflicted by the barrage.

Dairy Markets Show Steady Improvement

SACRAMENTO, June 20.—(UP)—Influenced by drought conditions of last year, Pacific Coast dairy markets have shown a steady improvement this year, according to the federal state market news service.

Coast markets were steady through May, with 92 score butter selling at 27 cents, as compared with 21 cents a year ago. American type cheese prices average 4 cents higher than at this time last year.

"Those having confidence in the outlook for the butter market point to the higher production of butter this year, and to the fact that food prices generally are sufficiently above a year ago to fully warrant butter prices averaging several cents above those of 1934," the report stated.

"A feature of the dairy situation since the first of the year has been the increasing imports of foreign butter. Unofficial figures give total imports as 21,000,000 pounds. Imports last year amounted to 227,000 pounds."
